

2025 – 2026 Arizona HOSA State Executive Council Application

IS RUNNING FOR STATE OFFICE RIGHT FOR ME?

The opportunities and experiences provided to state officers are tremendous and many past state officers consider their term as a pivotal experience in their lives. Being an officer provides for many great opportunities, but many different responsibilities as well. Those interested in applying should carefully consider the decision to run for state office and what it requires.

On average, SEC members may spend five to ten hours a week working on their state officer assignments and responsibilities. Prior to state officer meetings, conferences, and HOSA events, the average time per week increases as officers finalize preparations and polish assignments. It is important to remember that while academics remain the number one priority, officers will not be able to fall behind as an officer. Officers will be required to participate in the team decision-making process, perform their assigned tasks, and attend all required conferences and events.

During their term in office, elected officers will be required to attend ALL major conferences, officer meetings, and HOSA events which are outlined at the beginning of their term. Officers will not be allowed to leave early, come late, or miss any parts of these events (except in the case of emergency) without permission. The expectation is that state officer responsibilities and commitments will take priority after an officer's academics.

Anyone willing to make this commitment and that has the drive to succeed as well as the drive to get the job done should consider running for state office! If unsure, it is recommended that members consult with their local advisors for their opinion and advice. Those who decide to run for office can be assured that being a state officer will be one of their most memorable experiences.

Running for State Executive Council can be divided into three key phases: 1. Application 2. Interviews/Exam and 3. SLC Elections. Below is a timeline that includes information about the process of becoming an officer.
